About Vienna City

Vienna is the capital and largest city of Austria. Vienna is the host to many major international organizations, the city is in eastern part of Austria near to Czech Republic, Slovakia and Hungary. City center was UNESCO World Heritage Site. Vienna is not only called City of Music but also called City of Dream is also well know for its Historical architecture Vienna is most prosperous city in the world. it best destination for international congresses and conventions

Vienna is one of the wealthiest regions in the European Union: Its gross regional product of EUR 47,200 per capita constituted 25.7% of Austria's GDP. Together, approximately 8,300 new companies are being founded in Vienna every year since 2004. The majority of these companies are operating in fields of industry-oriented services, wholesale trade as well as information and communications technologies and new media. Vienna makes effort to establish itself as a start-up hub. The city of Vienna attaches major importance to science and research and focuses on creating a positive environment for research and development.

During the late eighteenth century Vienna attracted composers from across Europe. Composers like Mozart, Haydn and Beethoven were drawn to the city by patronage of Habsburgs who were willing to support the music. Furthermore during the eighteenth century, except of the music development, a cultural development in the field of architecture and arts occurred. The words elegance, grace, symmetry and restraint are the most suitable words for the tendencies of the music, of art and the architecture of that period. Also in classical period a development in theatre and opera style was noticed.
