MARKET ANALYSIS

The global healthcare market was valued at approximately $10.2 trillion in 2022 and is expected to reach $12.8 trillion by 2025, growing at a CAGR (Compound Annual Growth Rate) of about 4.8%.The aging of the world's population is one of the main causes driving this trend, since it raises the need for long-term care and healthcare services. Technological developments in the medical field, like wearable health devices, telemedicine, and artificial intelligence, are also helping to drive market growth by increasing patient outcomes and diagnostic capacities. The increased need for continuous medical intervention and treatment due to the growing prevalence of chronic diseases including diabetes and cardiovascular problems is also driving up market demand. In addition, maintaining this development trajectory depends critically on raising healthcare spending and making investments in healthcare infrastructure, especially in emerging nations. The healthcare industry is becoming more and more important to the health and well-being of the world at large, as seen by the way its systems change and adapt to new challenges.
