MARKET ANALYSIS

The market size for stroke diagnostic and treatment products was estimated to be USD 32.69 billion in 2021 and is anticipated to increase to USD 65.45 billion by (a CAGR) of 8% from 2022 to 2030. A stroke occurs when a brain artery suddenly becomes clogged or starts bleeding, which results in a portion of the brain dying or causing an abrupt disability. During Stroke Congress 2024, you can learn more about the market for stroke conferences.

A number of nations reported a decline in the number of acute stroke patients as a result of the COVID-19 pandemic, which had a significant effect on the global market. In addition, a significant decrease in the number of stroke consultations and rates of reperfusion therapy, notably thrombolysis, was seen in response to government instructions to reduce COVID-19.

Results In the European Union in 2017, there were 1.12 million incident strokes, 9.53 million stroke survivors, 0.46 million fatalities, and 7.06 million years of life lost due to disability. We projected an increase in incidence strokes of 40.000 (+3%) and prevalent stroke cases of 2.58 million (+27%) by 2047.

Someone passes away from a stroke every 3.5 minutes. In the United States, there are more than 795,000 strokes per year. Of these, 610,000 are first-time strokes. One in four strokes, or about 185,000, occur in adults who have already had a stroke.

ABOUT VENUE

Barcelona, situated on Spain's northeastern coastline, stands as the capital and largest city of Catalonia, boasting a population of 1.6 million within its city limits. Its urban expanse encompasses neighboring municipalities within the province, hosting approximately 4.8 million inhabitants and ranking as the EU's fifth most populous urban area, following Paris, the Ruhr area, Madrid, and Milan. Positioned between the Llobregat and Besòs river mouths, Barcelona reigns as one of the Mediterranean's significant metropolises, bordered to the west by the Serra de Collserola mountain range. Established as a Roman city, Barcelona evolved into the County of Barcelona's capital during the Middle Ages. Later, it united with the Kingdom of Aragon, forming the confederation of the Crown of Aragon. As the foremost city in this confederation and the key economic and administrative hub, Barcelona yielded its supremacy only to be surpassed by Valencia, captured from Moorish control by the Catalans. This transpired shortly before the dynastic union between the Crown of Castile and the Crown of Aragon in 1492.

Climate: Barcelona has a hot summer Mediterranean climate with mild winters, experiencing transitional characteristics towards a humid subtropical climate. The city faces urban heat island effects, with an average annual temperature of 21.2°C during the day and 15.1°C at night. It sees minimal temperature fluctuations, rare frosts, and infrequent snowfall, mainly in nearby mountains. Rainfall occurs on around 78 days yearly, with the wettest periods in late summer and autumn and the least rain in early to mid-summer. Sunshine varies from 4.5 hours a day in December to 10 hours a day in July, totaling 2,524 hours annually.

City site and layout: Barcelona's geographic layout. It describes Barcelona as situated on a plain measuring 11 km in length and 6 km in width. The city is bordered by the sea and the Collserola mountain range, with Tibidabo being the highest point at 516.2 meters. Additionally, it mentions the Besós and Llobregat rivers' deltas as part of Barcelona's geographical boundaries. This information paints a clear picture of the city's location and its surrounding natural features.
