MARKET ANALYSIS

The U.S. Primary care physicians market size was valued at USD 266.0 billion in 2022 and is expected to expand at a compound annual growth(CAGR) of 3.28% from 2023 to 2030. The growth can be attributed to the growing access to primary care providers, which is expected to reduce healthcare expenditure and the growing hospitalization rate. Primary health care encompasses the role of health care practitioners who deliver their services as the starting point of consultation for all patients within the health care system. The term Primary care is mostly associated with the dispensers who deliver services locally in a given region. There are different means and modes of dispensation, for instance, Urgent care centers that deliver services to patient's same day they report or on an appointment basis. Healthcare system according to the needs, aspirations, and economic affordability of the area as well as in view of the patient's desire might allow another healthcare professional such as a pharmacist, a nurse, or a traditional medicine professional to proceed with his or her dispensation first.\

A vision for Primary health care in the 21st century provides the rationale for and foundation of the Astana Declaration, with its continued political focus on the right to integrated, quality, personal, and population-level primary care, on health as a multisectoral social and economic construct, dependent on many sectors and on community engagement in health, and empowerment with respect to health services. It reviews evidence gathered over the last 40 years.
