Offering opportunity to go to the presentations conveyed by eminent experts from everywhere throughout the world. Participating in Advanced materials gives an approach to meet, cooperate with, and make contacts with different specialists in your claim to fame region. Advanced material is a high-quality material that demonstrates superior properties over the material. And these materials have physical and chemical properties. Based on marks the advanced material is classified into lightweight materials, ceramics, glass, The ceramic held a significant market share during the historical period. This can be increased usage of electroceramics in the electronic industries in recent years and going demand for lightweight two-wheeler and four-wheelers this increase the market analysis. Material science is developing bit by bit each day. The worldwide material market was prestigious at $ 148 million in 2015 and is needed to archive $1387 million dollars in 2022 developing at the GAGR of 39.7% amid the gauge time frame.

Market Analysis

There are a lot of opportunities for advanced materials like nanomaterials, colloids, catalysts, etc. There will be a leading share in the advanced material market by Asia pacific. The development in rising industries and rising manufacturing activities in the region. Is one of the challenges in the global advanced material market is the high price of advanced material produced. Some of the materials like nanomaterials have an average price of $1000 per gram. These high prices will make the industries think twice before buying this even though they have many properties available in the market. Investing in new advanced materials and the improvement of existing products in terms of properties is the key trend of the advanced materials market. The high quality of this usage encourages their usage in industry, healthcare, and aerospace. Advanced steel and aluminium alloys in industries increase their demand worldwide.

Target Audience

- Engineering professors and faculty
- Materials engineers
- Graduate with science
- Nano engineers
- Science researcher
- physicists\chemist
- pharmaceutical companies
- Medical devices and software development companies
- Members of different material science

Why to attend?

Advanced materials and materials science provides a worldwide stage for trading thoughts and makes us feel great about recent materials in industries. chance to listen to a word conveyed by worldwide speakers and scientists. Which is important to engineering activities such as electronics, telecommunication, information processing. and aim of material science is to investigate the effect of the structure on various scales.
