MARKET ANALYSIS

The worldwide oncology market is expanding as a result of the growing cancer conference 2023 burden globally caused by rising alcohol and cigarette use. In its GLOBOCAN report, the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC) estimates that there were roughly 19.3 million new cases of cancer and 10 million cancer-related deaths worldwide in 2020. According to the IARC, global new cancer cases are predicted to increase by 47% between 2020 and 2040.

Thus, it is anticipated that the rising incidence of cancer would encourage the use of oncology diagnostics and oncology treatments everywhere, thereby fostering the expansion of the worldwide cancer conference 2023 market. Additionally, it is anticipated that the market would rise as a result of increased government and non-profit activities to raise awareness about cancer prevention. For instance, the Global Action Plan for Prevention and Control of Non-Communicable Diseases of the World Health Organization seeks to reduce the number of preventable deaths from diabetes, cancer, cardiovascular disease, and other chronic respiratory illnesses by around 25% by the year 2025. The need for early cancer diagnosis and treatment has increased due to the growing frequency of numerous chronic illnesses.

ABOUT VENUE

The capital and largest city of France is Paris. The oldest section of Paris, comprised of the two islands Île Saint-Louis and the larger Île de la Cité, is situated in a northern bending arc of the Seine in north-central France. The North Atlantic Current has an impact on Paris' typical Western European oceanic climate. The overall climate is pleasant and fairly humid all throughout the year. One of the major hubs for business, diplomacy, fashion, science, and the arts in Europe has been Paris. The Louvre, Sainte-Chapelle, and Notre-Dame Cathedral are among the most popular attractions in central Paris. The Eiffel Tower is situated southwest of the city on the left bank, next to Les Invalides, which also houses Napoleon's grave. Since the beginning of time, Paris has drawn artists from all over the world who come to the city for training and to be inspired by the abundance of galleries and other forms of art that are available there. Consequently, Paris earned the title of "City of Art." In the 16th and 17th centuries, Italian painters, particularly those who created sculpture and reliefs, had a significant impact on the evolution of art in Paris. In the French Baroque and Classical eras, the French royal family hired numerous Parisian painters to decorate their palaces since painting and sculpture had become the pride of the French monarchy.
