MARKET ANALYSIS

The global therapeutic market for the central nervous system is projected to reach $112 billion by 2022, with a CAGR of 7.4% from 2021 to 2028. The market has been assessed in North America, Asia Pacific, Europe, Latin America, the Middle East, and Africa. The study provides detailed analyses of R&D initiatives, revenue, services, supply and demand, pricing strategy, consumption, export/import supply, and regional gross margins. As advancements in detecting and treating diseases of the central and peripheral nervous systems occur, the global treatment rate is expected to rise.

Alzheimer's disease, with a market share of over 34% in 2020, is expected to maintain its dominance due to its high prevalence and accessible diagnostic tools like amyloid PET tracers. Government and non-profit institutions offer research opportunities that could drive industry growth, such as the Biomarkers Across Neurodegenerative Diseases (BAND) initiative developed by organizations like the Michael J. Fox Foundation for Parkinson's Research (MJFF) and Alzheimer's Research U.K.

The Parkinson's disease market is projected to grow at a CAGR of 13.2% due to the increasing prevalence and the rise in clinical trials for disease-treating medications. As of 2020, over 930,000 Americans had Parkinson's disease, with approximately 60,000 new diagnoses annually. Innovative research studies are focused on improving the diagnosis of Parkinson's disease.
