MARKET ANALYSIS

In 2020, it was projected that the market for dental services would be valued at USD 302.7 billion, and from 2021 to 2028, it is expected to grow at a CAGR of 6.4%. The diagnosis, prevention, and treatment of dental issues are among the dental services provided by dentists and other dental specialists. Some of the main factors propelling the market's growth include the rising frequency of dental caries and other periodontal problems, technological developments in dentistry, and the significant demand for cosmetic and laser dentistry. The ongoing COVID-19 outbreak has had a significant negative influence on the economy of dental care. Due to the strict social distance standards put in place, dental offices were closed in a number of countries.

The dental clinic category dominated the market in 2020 with a revenue share of more than 65.0%. This market category is predicted to develop at the fastest rate between 2021 and 2028. The majority of dental customers visit private practice dental clinics since there are specialists there. Most dental offices—more than 80%—are run by owners. The number of independent practices is rising on a global scale. This pattern is likely to persist in the years to come because it is economical, professionals are easily accessible, and cutting-edge technology is used.

A market size forecast for seven major currencies is included in the paper. Market sizing forecasts are given for 7 main currencies in the report: USD, EUR, JPY, GBP, AUD, CAD, and CHF. When currency exchange data is easily accessible, decision-making by company executives is improved. The years 2019 and 2020 are regarded as historical years in this study, while the years 2021 and 2022 are regarded as the base year and the estimated year, respectively. The years 2023 and 2027 are regarded as the forecast period.

ABOUT VENUE

France is a country in Western Europe that includes Mediterranean beaches, alpine villages, and historic capitals. Its city, Paris, is renowned for its designer boutiques, museums of classical art, such as the Louvre, and landmarks like the Eiffel Tower. The nation is recognized for its fine gastronomy and wines as well. Its lengthy history is attested to by Lascaux's prehistoric cave paintings, Lyon's Roman theatre, and Versailles' enormous Palace. In France, there are 464 airports. The biggest and busiest airport in the nation, Charles de Gaulle Airport, is close to Paris. It handles the majority of commercial and passenger traffic and connects Paris to almost all significant cities across the globe. Although many private airlines offer internal and international travel services, Air France is the country's primary airline. France has ten significant ports, the largest of which is located in Marseille, which is also the largest port on the Mediterranean Sea's eastern shore. France is crossed by 12,261 km (7,619 mi) of waterways, including the Canal du Midi, which runs through the Garonne river and links the Mediterranean Sea to the Atlantic Ocean.
