MARKET ANALYSIS

Dermatology is the specialized branch of medicine focusing on the skin and treatment of skin related diseases and conditions. This includes a variety of conditions, both pathological and cosmetic.

Between 2020 and 2025, the worldwide dermatological market will grow by USD 7.17 billion, with a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of over 11.7%. An ageing population, rising disposable incomes, improved health insurance coverage, and the growing need for early identification of dermatological disorders will all contribute to this market's rise.

ABOUT VENUE

Dubai is the United Arab Emirates' second-largest emirate (UAE). It has established itself as one of the most important international corporate centres and regional hubs in the globe. Dubai is the capital of the Dubai-Sharjah-Ajman metropolitan area, which is located on the emirate's northern shore. Abu Dhabi in the south, Sharjah in the northeast, and the Sultanate of Oman in the southeast all share the emirate of Dubai's borders. It has recently attracted international notice as a result of a number of large-scale building projects and sporting events. This multicultural city is a popular tourist destination, known for its rich traditions as well as modern iconic landmarks like the Burj Khalifa, the world's tallest skyscraper. Dubai was the 22nd most expensive city in the earth in 2012, and the most expensive city in the Middle East. Mercer, a worldwide consulting business based in the United States, ranked Dubai as the best location to live in the Middle East in 2013.

The United Arab Emirates has highlighted seven major critical areas. Transportation, renewable energy, education, health, technology, water resources, and space exploration are among them. This research emphasis helps to realise the UAE 2021 goal, in which innovation, research, science, and technology serve as the foundation for a productive and competitive knowledge-based economy.
