ABOUT VENUE

The arts, entertainment, fashion, business and finance, health care, the media, science and technology, tourism, and transport and communications are all significantly influenced by London. It is home to some of the top academic institutions in the world, including the comprehensive University College London, the London School of Economics for social sciences, and Imperial College London for natural and applied sciences. It also has Europe's highest concentration of higher education institutions. The busiest city airport system in the world is in London, the most visited city in Europe. The oldest rapid transport system in the world is the London Underground.

Over 300 different languages make up London's various cultures. Greater London was the third-most populated metropolis in Europe as of mid-2018, with a population of nearly 9 million, making up 13.4% of the population of the United Kingdom and more than 16% of the population of England. According to the 2011 census, the Greater London Built-up Area has 9.8 million residents, making it the fourth most populated region in all of Europe. With around 14 million residents as of 2016, the London metropolitan area ranked third in terms of population in all of Europe, making London a megacity.
