Market Analysis

PULSUS
WWW.PULSUSCONFERENCE.COM

The persistent elevation of blood pressure in the arteries is known as Hypertension (HTN) or High Blood Pressure (HBP), which is a long-term medical condition. No specific symptom for High blood pressure but Long-term High blood pressure is a major risk factor which causes atrial fibrillation, peripheral vascular disease, vision loss, chronic kidney disease and dementia. High blood pressure is classified as primary (essential) high blood pressure and secondary high blood pressure. Many cases fall under the primary category where the blood pressure rise is due to non-specific lifestyle and generic factor. Lifestyle factor that increases risk includes excess salt in diet, excess body weight, smoking, and alcohol use. Some cases come under secondary blood pressure where the cause can be identified as chronic kidney disease, narrowing of kidney arteries, endocrine disorders, and usage of birth control pills. For most of the adults, the normal blood pressure at rest is within the range of 100-130 (mmHg) systolic and 60-80 (mmHg) diastolic. High blood pressure is present if the resting blood pressure is persistently at or above 130/90 or 140/90 mmHg. Cardiovascular disease (CVD) deals with diseases with heart and blood leading to numerous problems which are related to a process called Atherosclerosis. Cardiovascular disease includes Coronary Artery disease like angina and myocardial infraction (commonly known as heart attack). CVD also includes stroke, heart failure, rheumatic heart disease, hypertensive heart disease and venous thrombosis. Heart attack occurs when the blood flows to a part of the heart which is blocked by a blood clot and Stroke occurs when a blood vessel that feeds the brain gets blocked by a blood clot.
