The utilization of Nanotechnology in the every possible field for enhancement of the better performance and quality of product turns out to be downright promising. Nanotechnology based innovation is being credited with improvements in efficiency and life-spans of existing technologies. Nanotechnology is the term used for the design and making of the particles whose use depends upon the specific structure at the nano-scale. Nanomaterials are usually materials which have at least one external dimension that measures <100 nano meters or with internal structures measuring <100 nm. These Nanomaterials can exhibit similar properties to those of the single nano particles. Nanomaterials can be of Natural type or an artificial type as Some of the Nanomaterials are found naturally as they can not be in the engineers desired structure, Hence some of them are designed as per the requirement and manufactured.
