About

The 3rd World Congress on Nanoscience is a Global digital scientific summit. It aims to promote Networking and recognize research work in the field of nanoscience and Nanotechnology.

Nanoscience is an ancient field that dated back to the 4th century BC. The modern concept of Nanoscience is first discussed by laureate Richard Feynman in the year 1959 by “There’s plenty of room available at the bottom”. The word “Nanoscience” was first coined by Norio Taniguchi in the year 1971. Nanotechnology almost has an application in everyone's day to day life

Nanoscience 2021 Webinar intends to encourage the international connection between the researchers and act as a gateway to share ideas and a platform to show their research work.

Some of the applications of Nanotechnology are nanobots in medicine, nanocage in oncology, nano processors in electronics, graphene polymer in textile, catalytic cells in the automotive, solar panel in the energy, and many.

Nanoscience and Nanotechnology scholars and their interest in environmental safety and conservation and enhance human comforts plays a vital role in pollution control, medical care, Lifestyle, long-lasting material production.
