Market Analysis

Preterm births form a serious pediatric health problem in the U.S., forming one of the leading causes of infant mortality in the country. Preterm births account for nearly 13% of all the births and 17% of all the infant deaths occurring in the nation and this phenomenon costs the country more than $25 billion annually. The condition is on an alarming rise due to factors such as labour treatments, induced fertility, poor prenatal care, inappropriate maternal age, obesity, and smoking.

Estimated market growth of Neonatal Health.

The decreasing incidence of preterm births is the major factor inhibiting the growth of the U.S. market for preterm infant care products and services. Also, the U.S. government initiatives to lower preterm birth incidence rate are expected to significantly reduce the number of preterm births in the country. For instance, the government campaign "Healthy People 2010" aimed to reduce the country's preterm birth rate from 12.7% in 2007 to 7.6% in 2010. According to the National Center for Health, 1 in 8 U.S. births are preterm and preterm birth rates in the U.S. have declined from 12.8% in 2006 to 12.3% in 2008.

Fund Allotment (in Million Dollars) to Neonates Healthcare Research:

The Children's Hospital Los Angeles group's members consist of individuals, corporations and foundations who commit a one to five-year pledge of $100,000 or more to help sustain the critical care that we provide in a family-centered environment.

Official development assistance (ODA) for maternal, newborn and child health in 2007 was $4.1 billion, up 16% from 2006 and nearly double the $2.1 billion in 2003. Although these trends show improved commitment, ODA for maternal, newborn and child health accounted for only 31% of all ODA for health in 2007. ODA flows for maternal, newborn and child health are important to track, but national resources are a much larger share of funding for maternal, newborn and child health.
