Market Analysis

Nursing Care Congress aims to discover advances in health practice, management and education in relation to health disparities as well as a breadth of other topics. According to the reports, total health care spending of Italy is 9.7% of GDP according to 2014 and estimated to increase of 10.5% by 2017. Estimated health care expenditure of Brazil is $309 millions Health care expenditure of America is $89.2 billion and expected to increase to $101.8 billion by 2017. Health care expenditure of Europe is $152.2 billion and expected to increase to $180.8 billion by 2018.

Rome was also ranked in 2014 as 32nd in the Global Cities Index, being the highest-ranking city in Italy. With a 2005 GDP of €94.376 billion (USD $121.5 billion), the city produces 6.7% of the national GDP (more than any other single city in Italy), and its unemployment rate, lowered from 11.1% to 6.5% between 2001 and 2005, is now one of the lowest rates of all the European Union capital cities. Rome grows +4.4% annually and continues to grow at a higher rate in comparison to any other city in the rest of the country. This means that were Rome a country, it would be the world's 52nd richest country by GDP, near to the size to that of Egypt. Rome also had a 2003 GDP per capita of €29,153 (US$37,412), which was second in Italy, (after Milan), and is more than 134.1% of the EU average GDP per capita. Rome, on the whole, has the highest total earnings in Italy, reaching €47,076,890,463 in 2008, yet, in terms of average workers' incomes, the city places itself 9th in Italy, with €24,509. On a global level, Rome's workers receive the 30th highest wages in 2009, coming three places higher than in 2008, in which the city ranked 33rd. The Rome area had a GDP amounting to $167.8 billion, and $38,765 per capita.

Rome has 22 Universities and 217 hospitals, 381356 health care professionals including 28316 physicians and 32553 clinics and hospitals. The municipal government operates public health facilities across the city's territory, with a total of 770 primary health care units (UBS), ambulatory and emergency clinics and 17 hospitals. The Municipal Secretary of Healthcare Industry has 59,000 employees, including more than 8,000 physicians and 12,000 nurses. Italian Healthcare system is is 3rd place according to 2014 globally having life expectancy of 82.09.
