MARKET ANALYSIS

The global market of nursing is increased up to $1,010.1 billion to $1,058.6 billion in between 2019 to 2020. Mainly due to covid there is huge demand of nurses. It will expected that the growth of market at a CAGR of 7% from 2021 and reach $1,374.9 billion in 2023. But according to World Health Organization (WHO) the reports says that nearly 6 million more nurses will be required by 2030 to provide standard quality healthcare n once the COVID-19 has passed. In recent years, the global market for nursing professionals has grown. Despite the fact that primary health care is provided, the nursing profession has specialization. Some of them include Certified Nursing Assistants (CNAs), Licensed Practical Nurses (LPNs), and Licensed Vocational Nurses (LVNs), as well as Surgical Assistant Registered Nurses, Emergency Room Registered Nurses, Labor and Delivery Nurses, and Nurse Case Managers.

According to the American Association of Colleges of Nursing (AACN), there will be roughly 2.99 million registered nursing employments in 2020, according to the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS). According to the BLS, the field is expected to grow by 9% through 2030, creating more than 276,000 jobs with chances in more than 100 specializations ranging from school or camp nurse to cardiac care.

ABOUT VENUE

Austria is a landlocked country in south-central Europe that is mostly hilly. Despite Austria's full participation in the supranational European Union since 1995, it forms the so-called "neutral core" of Europe alongside Switzerland (EU).

Austria's significance may be traced in large part to its geographical location. It sits at the crossroads of European travel, connecting east and west over the ancient Danubian trade route and north and south through the spectacular Alpine mountains, entangling the nation in a variety of political and economic systems. This little country underwent more than a quarter century of social and economic instability, as well as a Nazi dictatorship, in the decades after the 1918 collapse of Austria-Hungary, the multinational empire of which it had been the heart. Nonetheless, the creation of permanent neutrality in 1955, together with the evacuation of the Allied forces who had occupied the nation since World War II's end, enabled Austria to evolve into a modern state. A peaceful and socially progressive nation with a thriving cultural life reminiscent of its former international musical splendour Its social and economic institutions, too, have taken on new shapes and a cooperative spirit, and, while political and social difficulties persist, they have not exploded with the ferocity seen in other Continent nations. The ancient city of Vienna (Wien), the historical seat of the Holy Roman Empire and a city famed for its architecture, is Austria's capital.
