MARKET ANALYSIS

The gynecology and obstetrics market is experiencing significant growth, driven by factors such as increasing awareness of women's health, a growing aging population, and rising fertility treatment demands. Valued at approximately USD 22 billion in 2025, the market is projected to expand at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 6–7% from 2023 to 2030. Within this framework, it's important to examine emerging trends and opportunities in maternal care, reproductive technologies, and minimally invasive gynecologic procedures. This surge is linked to the rising incidence of pregnancy-related complications, hormonal disorders, and gynecologic cancers. Modern tools and technologies are enhancing diagnostics, improving outcomes, and promoting patient-centered care. The diversity of women's health concerns also varies with age, lifestyle, genetics, and geographic region—further shaping the demand for specialized and advanced care.
