MARKET ANALYSIS

Oncology is regarded as the most dynamic area of therapy in terms of innovation, owing to the growing number of clinical trials and companies investing in cancer therapeutics, the size of the pipeline of therapies in the clinical phase of development, the novel drug substances being launched, and the growing global investment in Oncology.

The global Oncology market is growing due to the increased consumption of alcohol and tobacco. According to the International Agency for Research on Cancer (IARC) report GLOBOCAN, approximately 19.3 million new cancer cases and approximately 10 million cancer-related deaths were recorded globally in 2020. According to the IARC, new cancer cases are expected to rise by 47% worldwide between 2020 and 2040. As a result, the rising prevalence of cancer is expected to increase global adoption of Oncology diagnostics and Oncology treatment, boosting the global Oncology market's growth. Furthermore, rising initiatives by the government and various non-profit organization to raise awareness about cancer prevention are expected to fuel market growth. For example, the World Health Organization's Global Action Plan for the Prevention and Control of Noncommunicable Diseases aims to reduce premature death from cancer, cardiovascular disease, chronic respiratory diseases, and diabetes by approximately 25% by 2025. The rising prevalence of various chronic diseases has increased global demand for early cancer detection and treatment.
