Market Analysis

Cancer is a disease characterized by uncontrolled cell proliferation. There are more than 100 types of cancer. The most common causes of cancer death are cancers of Lung (1.69 million deaths), Liver (788 000 deaths), Colorectal (774 000 deaths), Stomach (754 000 deaths) and Breast (571 000 deaths) which accounts for nearly half of new cases per year. Lung cancer, which is highly correlated with cigarette smoking, is responsible for more deaths than any other form of cancer. Cigarette smoking and other environmental factors are associated with the majority of cancers.

The kinds of cancer we expect to increase the most are

- Melanoma (the deadliest kind of skin cancer) in white men and women.
- Prostate, kidney, liver, and bladder cancers in men.
- Lung, breast, uterine, and thyroid cancers in women.

Cancer is among the leading causes of death worldwide. In 2012, there were 14.1 million new cases and 8.2 million cancer-related deaths worldwide. The number of new cancer cases per year is expected to rise to 23.6 million by 2030. The most recent SEER Cancer Statistics Review, released in April 2018, shows that cancer death rates decreased by 1.8% per year among men from 2006 to 2015, 1.4% per year among women from 2006 to 2015 and 1.4% per year among children ages 0–19 from 2011 to 2015.

Global Oncology/ Cancer Drugs Market is expected to garner $111,938.4 million by 2020, registering a CAGR of 7.1% during the forecast period 2014 to 2020. Recent progress in biological therapies has widened the scale of therapeutic targets for cancer treatment with the identification of tumour cell specific genes. The number of approved cancer therapies continues to rise. The continued rise and impact of immuno-oncology has been largely centred on the PD-1 and PD-L1 checkpoint inhibitors, which have broad efficacy across solid tumours and are used across 23 different tumour types. Overall, the global market for oncology therapeutic medicines will reach as much as $200 billion by 2022, averaging 10—13% growth over the next five years, with the U.S. market reaching as much as $100 billion by 2022, averaging 12–15% growth.
