Market Analysis

Reducing and eliminating racial and ethnic disparities in infant mortality in Los Angeles County. The Healthy People 2010 objective is to reduce the Pediatric mortality rate to no more than 4.5 per 1,000 live births.1 The Pediatric mortality rate for LAC has had a downward trend for the past ten years, going from 5.9 deaths per 1,000 live births in 1997 to 4.8 deaths per 1,000 live births in 2006.2 Nevertheless, racial and geographic disparities in pediatircs mortality and adverse birth outcomes persist. In order to reduce the mortality rate this conference is going to be held at Los Angeles.

Annual Pediatrics 2016 provides the best opportunity to meet eminent scientists from all over the world. Accepted papers will be published in the following Pulses Group Journals.

- Clinics in Mother and Child Health
- Archives of Medicine
- Health Science Journal
- Current Research: Integrative Medicine

About City

Los Angeles officially the City of Los Angeles and often known by its initials L.A., is the second-largest city in the United States after New York City, the most populous city in California, and the county seat of Los Angeles County. Situated in Southern California, Los Angeles is known for its mediterranean climate, ethnic diversity, sprawling metropolis, and as a major center of the American entertainment industry. Los Angeles lies in a large coastal basin surrounded on three sides by mountains reaching up to and over 10,000 feet (3,000 m). The city is the focal point of the larger Los Angeles metropolitan area and the Greater Los Angeles Area region, which contain 13 million[16] and over 18 million people, respectively, as of 2010, making it one of the most populous metropolitan areas in the world as well as the second-largest in the United States. Los Angeles is the seat of Los Angeles County, the most populated county in the United States. The city's inhabitants are referred to as Angelenos.
