MARKET ANALYSIS

Market size was exceeded USD 2.4 billion in 2019 and is predicted to register over 7% CAGR from 2020 to 2026. The growing market size is associated to extend in number of neonatal healthcare facilities over the world together with rise in number of premature new-born in both the developed and developing economies. As per the recent statistic published by a hunt article, around 11% of the whole pregnancies end in premature or early deliveries. In the U.S. around 450,000 babies are born prematurely and in global among 15 million new births were premature. Hence, the new-born babies must be admitted in the HYPERLINK "https://pediatricnursing.pulsusconference.com/abstract-submission" neonatal health care facilities who provides the advance treatment and specialized nursing care.

However, poor accessibility towards Pediatric and neonatal care within the economically developed countries are visiting a major market impeding factor. within the agricultural and distant areas, the pregnant women must travel long distance for deliveries, thereby resulting in increasing the gap for necessary and better treatment. Hence, such conditions are accountable for prime death rate of the new-born. Moreover, poor infrastructure and poor-quality equipment are one among the key threats to the market growth.

In the present pandemic of COVID-19 has impacted the neonatal infant care market in a little bit. The pandemic has affected many people including adults, Pediatric and neonates over the world. The rapid spreading of COVID-19 thousands of people were admitted in hospitals, thereby providing demand for medical equipment in facilities. The new-born and Pediatrics are at increased risk of COVID-19 infection as they need underdeveloped immune systems. Hence, several government organizations have established specific regulations and standards for testing yet as efficient diagnostic procedures for the new-born and Pediatric. this can lead to stimulating the demand for diagnostic and monitoring equipment for neonatal care during pandemic across the world.

Increased healthcare expenditures and the presence of major players in the region will boost revenues for the U.S. market

North America's neonatal infant care market was dominated by the U.S. in 2019 and valued at USD 773.6 million. In the United States, several major market players are playing a significant role in promoting the market's expansion. North American market share is expected to continue to grow in the future due to rising healthcare expenditures and increasing number of product approvals. Increase in number of infant mortalities within the U.S. are going to be one amongst the foremost driving factors similarly.

ABOUT VENUE

Prague is a 3D architecture textbook. Romanesque chapels and cellars, Gothic cathedrals, Baroque palaces and gardens, worldly Art Nouveau buildings, and unique Cubist architecture make it a place with no parallel in the world. You don't have to be an expert on individual artistic styles in order to appreciate the diversity of the city's architecture.

Stroll across Charles Bridge is one of the most recognizable old bridges in Europe The bridge is particularly famous for its many fine old statues. Among the most important are those of Holy Roman Emperor Charles IV and John of Nepomuk, the country's most revered saint, unveiled in 1683 (a more recent superstition involves rubbing the plaque at the base of the statue for the granting of a wish).

Visit the Clementinum and the National Library the Clementinum (Klementinum), one of the largest collections of historic buildings in Europe, is home to the National Library of the Czech Republic. These beautiful Baroque buildings were originally part of a Jesuit College, and later came to house the Jesuit book collection, as well as the collection from the Karolinum.

Stop by the Old Town Square and the Astronomical Clock, here you'll find the Tyn Church and the Clementinum, along with numerous other fine old churches, as well as splendid old architecture dating back as far as the 11th century, while the Jewish Quarter, Josefov, is just a short walk north.
