MARKET ANALYSIS

Primary care physicians are in high demand due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Vaccination demands are being made on primary care physicians, and telemedicine and digital care services have opened up new segments for physicians to enhance primary care access across the country. Internal medicine practitioners in general play an essential role in managing the rise of healthcare costs and implementing primary care reforms.

The UK home healthcare market was worth roughly USD 1,291.6 million in 2018, and is expected to reach USD 1,961.5 million by 2027, rising at a CAGR of 6.4 percent over the forecast period (2018–2028). Due to Medicare beneficiaries' increased reliance on family physicians and general practitioners. In 2020, the general practitioner, family physician, and geriatrics physician categories produced nearly 39.3 percent of total revenue.

Persistence Market Research forecasts the U.K. private healthcare market to grow from more than £12,500 Mn in 2017 to over £13,000 Mn by 2026. This equates to a 3% CAGR during the anticipated period.
