MARKET ANALYSIS

By 2028, the market for dental implants and prosthetics, which was valued at USD 10.57 billion in 2020, is expected to have grown to USD 17.44 billion, with a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 6.97% between 2021 and 2028. Due to rising cases of dental caries, periodontal illnesses, tooth loss, expanding discretionary income, rising dental tourism, and a booming aesthetic industry, the global market for dental prosthesis is expanding. The World Health Organization (WHO) projected those oral disorders impacted roughly 3.58 billion people worldwide in 2016. From 2022 to 2030, the market for dental prosthesis is projected to increase at a rate of 11.6%, reaching USD 29.6 billion by that time.

ABOUT VENUE

Thailand's capital, Bangkok, is a large metropolis with stunning shrines and active streets. It is in the middle of small towns and villages and serves as the cultural hub of Thailand. The Gulf of Thailand is around 40 kms away from Bangkok. Places of worship, new age infrastructure, and the city's highways and canals all contribute to the metropolis' dynamism and bustle. It is also a well-liked tourist destination, hosting a wide variety of cultural events and fairs all year long. From 2021 to 2026F, the Thai medical device market is anticipated to expand at a double-digit CAGR, with imports accounting for the vast bulk of market sales. The country's ageing population, growing number of hospitals and clinics, rising overall government healthcare spending, and rising medical tourism will all have a favourable impact on the market for medical devices. Due to the ageing population, the market for dental appliances and artificial teeth has significant growth potential. Since Thailand is significantly dependent on foreign goods, artificial teeth, and dental fittings, including dental implants, are nevertheless appealing even without the high growth rate.
