MARKET ANALYSIS

The global psychiatry and mental health sector continues to experience significant and sustained growth, driven by rising awareness, reduced stigma, and rapid advancements in therapeutic and technological innovations. The global mental health market, valued at USD 140.3 billion in 2020, is projected to grow at a strong compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 14.3% through 2028, as reported by Grand View Research.
A major factor behind this expansion is the increasing prevalence of mental health conditions across diverse populations. According to the World Health Organization, one in four individuals worldwide will face a mental health disorder at some point in their lives. This growing demand has intensified the need for accessible, effective, and multidisciplinary mental health services—ranging from counseling and pharmacological treatments to digital therapeutics, telepsychiatry, and community-centered care models.
The 10th Global Experts Meeting on Psychiatry and Mental Health aims to explore these urgent challenges and emerging opportunities by convening leading psychiatrists, psychologists, neuroscientists, researchers, clinicians, and global stakeholders. This gathering will provide a platform to exchange innovative ideas, showcase breakthrough research, and develop collaborative strategies that advance the future of mental healthcare.
