Tourist Attractions

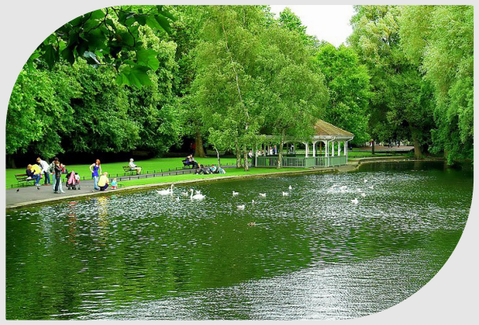

Venue

Dublin, Ireland's capital, need no introduction, and it is the top destination for many travellers to Ireland. Dublin is rich in history, charm, and scenery, as well as museums, galleries, theatres, shopping, pubs, and restaurants.

Dublin, after London, Paris, and Rome, was chosen Europe's fourth most popular city break destination, and is one of the nicest capital cities in the world. Dublin is one of Europe's most beautiful capitals because to its magnificent Georgian architecture. Dublin is a modest and accessible city, small and safe enough to navigate on foot, but the Luas tram system and the DART suburban train system provide good transportation links across the city.

Many of Ireland's treasures are preserved in the city's galleries and museums, and it is also where some of the country's most historic events took place, most notably the Easter Uprising of 1916. Despite the fact that the combat between the IRA and British forces caused enormous damage to the O'Connell Street neighbourhood of Dublin (the bullet holes on the General Post Office can still be seen), it was one of the defining events of the Irish Republic.
