Market Analysis

PULSUS
WWW.PULSUSCONFERENCE.COM

The robotics market was esteemed at USD 23.67 billion in 2020 and is relied upon to arrive at USD 74 billion by 2026 and develop at a CAGR of 20.4% over the forecast period (2021-2026). The market is encountering a huge change, with robots developing past the workhorses of industrial shop floors and starting to adopt the jobs of personal assistants, surgical assistants, delivery vehicles, autonomous vehicles, exoskeletons, and crewless aerial vehicles, among numerous different employments. In the previous decade, industrial robots used to be extravagant, because of this, the ROI is relied upon to be accomplished after a decade. Nonetheless, as of now, more modest shared robots are estimated for organizations to get ROI in months rather than many years, regularly costing around USD 20,000. Declining sensor costs and expanding reception have additionally helped lower costs.

The worldwide fight against COVID-19 has seen innovation assume an essential part in helping people in containing the spread of the infection and managing the current cases. One of the basic advancements that have had a colossal effect on the ground is robotics. A large number of hospitals worldwide are now utilizing robots to help both the medical services staff and patients. Robots can be conveyed for sanitization, delivering medications and food, measuring vital signs, and assisting border controls. In China, Disinfection Robot UVD was popular since the flare-up of the pandemic. Numerous clinics in the nation have been requesting the robot, which is made by Denmark's Blue Ocean Robotics. These robots have assumed a vital part in controlling the infection in Wuhan, the focal point of the infection.
