MARKET ANALYSIS

The global stem cell research and therapy market is expected to grow at a compound annual growth rate (CAGR) of 10.2% during the forecast period from 2021 to 2028, according to a report by Grand View Research. The market was valued at $13.6 billion in 2020 and is expected to reach $27.8 billion by 2028.This growth is attributed to the increasing investments in stem cell research by government organizations and private companies, as well as the rising prevalence of chronic diseases. Based on product, the stem cell research market can be segmented into cell lines, instruments, and reagents. Cell lines are expected to dominate the market, accounting for over half of the total market revenue in 2023.

- On the basis of technology, the market can be categorized into cell acquisition, cell production, cell preservation, and cell analysis. Cell production is expected to dominate the market, owing to the high demand for stem cells in therapy and regenerative medicine.Geographically, North America is expected to hold the largest share of the global stem cell research market in 2023, followed by Europe and Asia-Pacific. This can be attributed to the presence of major players in the region, as well as the increasing government funding for stem cell research.
