Diabetes mellitus is the most common endocrine metabolic disorder that is multifactorial such as, genetic factor and environment elements. Basically our body breaks down the sugar and carbohydrates into simple sugar as glucose. This glucose is required to the body cells in order to activate the metabolism. This job is done by the hormone called insulin, which produced by beta cells. The person with high blood sugar either will have insulin resistance in the body or deficit production of insulin. The patients with high blood sugar will have symptoms such as, frequent of urination, more thirsty and hungry. Because of such factors, the glucose will start to deposit on blood vessels in heart, kidney which will damage the parts. It can eventually causes heart diseases, kidney diseases and nerve system damage.The threat of a diabetes epidemic is top of the UAE's list of health concerns right now with some reports claiming that the disease is responsible for 75 per cent of deaths among nationals. That seems like an incredible figure and is a serious problem in the UAE.

Dubai is the most populous city in the United Arab Emirates (UAE). It is located on the southeast coast of the Persian Gulf and is one of the seven emirates that make up the country. The city of Dubai is located on the emirate's northern coastline and heads up the Dubai-Sharjah-Ajman metropolitan area. Dubai is to host World Expo 2020. Dubai has emerged as a global city and business hub of the Middle East. It is also a major transport hub for passengers and cargo. By the 1960s, Dubai's economy was based on revenues from trade and, to a smaller extent, oil exploration concessions, but oil was not discovered until 1966. Oil revenue first started to flow in 1969. Dubai's oil revenue helped accelerate the early development of the city, but its reserves are limited and production levels are low: today, less than 5% of the emirate's revenue comes from oil. The emirate's Western-style model of business drives its economy with the main revenues now coming from tourism, aviation, real estate, and financial services.
