This paper presents a new doctrine of acute pneumonia , based on known medical science advances and additional own researches of the author.Changing ideas about the nature of the disease led to the revision of the principles of medical care to this category of patients.Clinical testing of new approaches to the treatment of the most aggressive forms of pneumonia not only confirms the feasibility of such audit views and methods of influence,but also suggests the possibility of the guaranteed prevention of complications of the disease.

The paradox of the scientific career of highly qualified pediatric surgeon of Russia and Israel lies in the fact that the most impressive result have been achieved in the non-surgical section of the medicine.The results obtained by the author can help in solving the problem of prevention of purulent and destructive complications of acute pneumonia

978-3-330-35250-6

klepikov

igor klepikov

Acute pneumonia:a new look at the old problem

LAP LAMBERT Academic Publishing