Organizing Committee Member

Anil Mishra

Anil Mishra is a Professor of Medicine and the Director of Tulane Eosinophilic Disorder Center in the section of pulmonary diseases at Tulane University School Of Medicine. He showed that eosinophil active chemokine eotaxin-1 has significant role for eosinophils homing into the gastrointestinal tract. He developed the first murine model of eosinophilic esophagitis. Recently, he reported that rIL-15 is a therapeutic molecule for the allergen-induced airway hyperactivity and fibrosis for chronic asthma. He is an Elected Fellow of American Academy of Allergy Asthma Immunology (FAAAAI) and American Gastrointestinal Association (FAGA).

Organizing Committee Member

Giulio Tarro

Giulio Tarro has been engaged in medical research for over 30 years. His mission-oriented research has dealt with many aspects of various infectious diseases. During 1979 he was engaged in research on an epidemic disease in Naples called the "dark disease". Dr Tarro isolated the respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) and found antibody evidence that this virus was behind the epidemic. Dr Tarro is currently engaged in scientific research related to the separation and identification of tumour antigens present on cell membranes and their potential value in immunotherapy for cancer. Dr Tarro is life president of the T. and L. de Beaumont Bonelli Foundation for Cancer Research. Over 15+ patents, 500+ articles, 20+ books and several awards mark his CV.
