About Rome
Rome was founded in 753 BC by Romulus. Roman legend says that Romulus had a twin brother called Remus. As babies they were abandoned in the area which later became Rome. A she-wolf found and raised them, but when they grew up Romulus fought and killed Remus and became the first ruler of Rome! The population of the city of Rome is around 2.7 million. The entire metropolitan area of Rome has an estimated 3.7 million people. By the early fourth century; the Romans had built a road network of 53,000 miles throughout the empire. Each Roman mile was about 1,000 paces (about 4,800 feet) and was marked by a milestone. Hence the proverb "All roads lead to Rome. "The word "palace" comes from the Palatine Hill, where Augustus established the emperors' tradition of building their palaces. Modern Rome has 280 fountains and more than 900 churches. In Ancient Rome only free-born Roman men were allowed to wear togas, which was a sign of Roman citizenship.
The Roman women wore stolas, which were a female toga version made from linen. Rome is 4,336 m (14,453 ft.) above sea level and located inland about 27 kilometers (17 miles) from the Tyrrhenian Sea. Rome is known as the "Eternal city" and also "Caput Mundi," coming from Latin and meaning capital of the world. Rome's mascot is a she-wolf that cared for the brothers Romulus and Remus, the legendary founders of Rome.
