Boston is surrounded by the "Greater Boston" region. Boston is sometimes called a "city of neighbourhoods" as a result of the bounty of differing subsections; the city government's Office of Neighbourhood Services has authoritatively assigned 23 neighbourhoods. Boston has a humid continental climate. Boston's schools and colleges apply a huge effect on the territorial economy. Boston pulls in more than 350,000 understudies from around the globe, who contribute more than US$4.8 billion every year to the city's economy. City attractions of Boston: Freedom Trail-The three-mile Freedom Trail leads you past - and into - 16 of the city's principal historic monuments and sites. It's easy to follow, by the line of red bricks in the sidewalk and by footprints at street crossings. Begin by picking up brochures on the attractions at the Visitor Center in the Boston Common before heading to the State House. Faneuil Hall-Known as the "cradle of liberty," Faneuil Hall was built in 1740- 42 by Huguenot merchant Peter Faneuil as a market hall and presented to the city on condition that it should always be open to the public. The ground floor is still occupied by market stalls; on the upper floor is a council chamber, which in the 18th an 19th centuries was the meeting place of revolutionaries and later, of abolitionists. On its fourth floor is the Ancient and Honourable Artillery Museum, with weaponry, uniforms, and paintings of significant battles.
