Paris: A Global Capital of Culture, Commerce, and Connectivity

Paris, the capital and most populous city of France, serves as the heart of the Île-de-France region, also known as the Paris Region. As of January 1, 2023, the city and its surrounding area had an estimated population of 12.27 million, making up about 19% of France's total population. In 2021, the Paris Region boasted a GDP of €765 billion (US$1.064 trillion PPP), the largest in the European Union. According to the Economist Intelligence Unit's 2022 Worldwide Cost of Living Survey, Paris ranked as the ninth most expensive city globally.

A key hub for rail, road, and air transport, Paris is served by two major international airports: Charles de Gaulle Airport, the third-busiest in Europe, and Orly Airport. The Paris Métro, opened in 1900, handles 5.23 million passengers daily, making it the second-busiest metro system in Europe after the Moscow Metro. Gare du Nord, one of its primary railway stations, is the busiest outside Japan, accommodating 262 million passengers in 2015.
