Market Report

The market analysis of neurology represent the largest and untapped market in medicine sector. This estimated market analysis is based on probability of approval and sales of products in late stage development, demographic trends and marketing of product. Emerging markets once again helps to boost revenues. CNS therapeutics comprise approximately 15% of total pharmaceutical sales, nearly $30 billion worldwide.

An estimated annual economic costs of anxiety disorders, depression, and schizophrenia are $47 billion, $44 billion, and $33 billion per year approximately. The goal of this session is to understand the market Value & Growth of Neurology Drugs, Current economics cost of clinical research and development.

On top of growing patient numbers, there remains a comparatively high unmet need in treatment of many neurological diseases. With the potential of being one of the most lucrative therapy areas in the future pharmaceutical Industry, Alzheimer's disease offers the greatest commercial opportunity for pharmaceutical companies in neurology. Many of the therapeutic drugs used to treat Neurological disorders have lost their patent protection or market exclusivity, leading to greater research and market opportunities for competing pharmaceutical and medical device companies.

According to a new report by Grand View Research, Inc. the global neuroscience market is predicted to reach USD 30.8 billion by 2020. Germany, U.K., France, Switzerland, Italy, and Spain are the leading countries in Europe in the neurological disorder drugs market. The occurrence of neurological disorders such as epilepsy , Parkinson’s disease, Alzheimer’s disease, multiple sclerosis, schizophrenia, traumatic brain injury, spinal cord injury, cerebrovascular diseases has increased the demand for neurological drugs in the market. The European drug market is expected to reach US$32.0 billion by the end of 2024 when compared to US$18.3 billion in 2015.
