Market Analysis of Gastroenterology

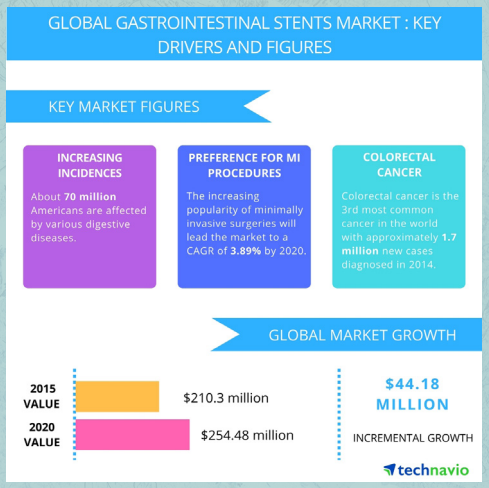

The global gastrointestinal (GI) stents market size was valued at USD 314.8 million in 2016 and is expected to grow at a CAGR of 4.7% over the forecast period.Factors such as increasing geriatric population who have stomach or digestive cancer and gradually stabilizing prices of these devices in emerging countries of Asia and Latin America are driving the growth of the market.

Furthermore, increasing adoption of minimally invasive procedures is propelling the growth of gastrointestinal stents market. These devices are becoming the preferred choice for the management of various gastrointestinal diseases due to certain benefits it provides over conventional products in terms of reduced blood loss, lesser chances of infection, shorter hospital stay, and quick recovery.

Technavio analysts forecast the global gastrointestinal stents market to grow at a CAGR of almost 4% during the forecast period, according to their latest report.

The research study covers the present scenario and growth prospects of the global gastrointestinal stents market for 2016-2020. The report also presents the vendor landscape and a corresponding detailed analysis of the top vendors operating in the market.

The global gastrointestinal stents market is growing at a steady rate and is primarily driven by factors such as growing aging population, changing lifestyles, and intake of unhealthy foods that increases the incidence of digestive tract problems. The market leaders in gastrointestinal stents market include Boston Scientific and Cook Medical. The rising demand for gastrointestinal cancers such as colorectal cancer, esophageal cancer, gallbladder cancer, pancreatic cancer, and rectal cancer have increased the demand for gastrointestinal stents in the market.

Host City

Budapest, the capital of Hungary, was created in 1873 by the merger of three cities: Buda, Óbuda and Pest. Budapest is the city where Eastern Europe meets the western Europe both geographically and culturally and the city is naturally beautiful which is walkable and bike-able and this city has unhurried lifestyle :Slower, laid-back and relaxed lifestyle. Budapest has wide variety of Cultural Entertainments which include variety of good food Restaurants.

It also has wide variety of Good valued accommodation which also attracts Children and for adults it has vivid night life. Thriving food scene: Since 2010 or so, a gastronomic revolution has been taking place in Budapest. New ingredients, inventive recipes, and international dishes are entering the mainstream that was previously dominated by carbs and meat-heavy Hungarian staples like beef stew. Presently in recent times in Budapest,2002 – Andrássy Avenue is added to the World Heritage Sites, along with the Millennium Underground Railway, Heroes' Square and City Park. Compared to most European capitals, Budapest is safe and clean. When walking around downtown districts, even at night, you don't need to worry about looking over your shoulder. Budapest has an Excellent Public Transportation. The city has plenty of fine art, and Budapest-specific thematic museums. Budapest has Thermal baths,With a practically endless supply of hot springs beneath its surface, the city's history of thermal bathing goes all the way back to the Romans. Budapest is cheap. In most other cities tourists would need to shell out way more for the quality of food, drinks, live music, and accommodation offered here.
