About the conference

The 23rd Global Conference on Diabetes, Endocrinology, and Primary Healthcare is set to take place on June 24-25, 2025 in Paris, France.

Diabetes is a growing concern worldwide, with over 400 million people suffering from the condition. This conference aims to bring together leading experts, researchers, and healthcare professionals to discuss the latest advancements in diabetes and endocrinology, primary healthcare, and their efforts towards a diabetes-free world.

The conference will feature keynote speeches, panel discussions, and workshops that will focus on the latest innovations in diabetes prevention, management, and treatment. Participants will have the opportunity to learn about the latest research findings and best practices in diabetes care from some of the world's leading experts.

In addition to learning from the experts, the conference will also provide participants with the opportunity to network with other healthcare professionals from around the world. This will provide them with a unique opportunity to share their knowledge and experience, learn about new developments in the field, and collaborate on future research projects.

Theme: "Current Trends and Advances in Diabetes Research for an Improved Healthcare System".
