Dear Friends!!

The Global Nursing Care 2018 annual meeting offers unparalleled Careal, networking and business development opportunities. This three-day meeting is so highly regarded that more than 250+ attendees travel from 90 countries to attend and participate – making it the largest Careal event in nursing in the world. We're excited to invite you to be part of it.

The goal of the GNC 2018 is to respond to the changing Careal needs of its members whether this is through additional workshops, simulation or electronic media. The attending delegates include Editorial Board Members of related International Journals. This is an excellent opportunity for the attendees from Universities and Institutes to interact with the world class Experts. GNC 2018 is committed to providing attendees with an amazing experience. The Global Nursing Care 2018 annual meeting is sure to exceed your expectations in every way. With over 60 Careal sessions that cross 12 clinical tracks, you are invited to participate in seminars, refresher course lectures, panels, pro-con debates, clinical forums, hands-on workshops, scientific abstract posters and presentations, and medically challenging cases. This meeting offers something for everyone.

With Best Regards

TOURISTS ATTRACTIONS

Freedom Trail

The three-mile Freedom Trail leads you past - and into - 16 of the city's principal historic monuments and sites. It's easy to follow, by the line of red bricks in the sidewalk and by footprints at street crossings. Begin by picking up brochures on the attractions at the Visitor Center in the Boston Common before heading to the State House. The trail will take you to Old Granary Burying Ground (where Paul Revere, Samuel Adams, and John Hancock are buried), King's Chapel Burying Ground(Boston's oldest cemetery with the graves of Governor John Winthrop and two Mayflower passengers), Old South Meeting House (where the ringing speeches of patriots spawned the Boston Tea Party), and the Old State House.

Boston Common and Public Garden Swan Boats

In the heart of the city is Boston Common, America's oldest park and the start of the Freedom Trail. In this large green space, which is much used by locals year-round, are various monuments and the Central Burying Ground of 1756. You can rent skates to use on the Frog Pond from November through mid-March, enjoy the spring blossoms and fall foliage colors reflecting in its surface, and in summer, watch youngsters splash about in the wading pool.

Beacon Hill

One of Boston's most beautiful neighborhoods and right in the center of the city, the south side of Beacon Hill has traditionally been the home of Boston's "old money" families, known locally as "Brahmins." Well-kept brick homes in Federal and Greek Revival styles line its tree-shaded streets, and at its heart is Louisburg Square,where homes face onto a leafy private park. Author Louisa May Alcott lived here from 1880 to 1888.

Harvard Square and Harvard Art Museums

Adjoining Harvard Yard is the Renzo Piano-designed home of the Harvard Art Museums, including three formerly separate collections, each of which ranked high as major U.S. art museums. Few universities have such enviable collections. Fogg Art Museum concentrates on Italian early-Renaissance art, the Busch-Reisinger on Expressionist art of central and northern Europe, with Bauhaus objects and paintings by Kandinsky and Klee. The Arthur M. Sackler Museum has one of the world's best collections of Chinese jade, as well as Chinese bronzes, Japanese prints, Indian art, and Greco-Roman antiquities, especially vases and sculptures.

Fenway Park

Known as "America's Most Beloved Ballpark", Fenway Park is one of the most fabled sports complexes in the country, and even if you're not a sports fan, a tour of it is both fun and interesting. The home of the Boston Red Sox looks much the same as it did when it opened on April 20, 1912. One of its most recognizable features is the Green Monster, the 37-foot green wall in left field, and the park still maintains some of the remnants of "old time" baseball such as the hand-operated scoreboard. It also has the lowest seating capacity in the Major Leagues holding only 33,871 spectators (a fact that makes tickets exceedingly scarce).

Copley Square

The main square of the Back Bay area is surrounded by both old and ultra-modern buildings. Its architectural highlight is Trinity Church, a red sandstone building designed by architect Henry Hobson Richardson in his distinctive style, known as Richardson Romanesque. Trinity is widely considered to be his finest work. On a third side of the square is the venerable Boston institution, the Copley Plaza Hotel, now a Fairmont property; these three buildings, backed by the sheer glass wall of a skyscraper, create a stunning cityscape.

Boston Harbour

Boston Harbor is a natural harbor and estuary of Massachusetts Bay, and is found neighboring the city of Boston, Massachusetts. It is home to the Port of Boston, a noteworthy transportation office in the northeastern United States.Boston Harbor is a substantial harbor which constitutes the western furthest point of Massachusetts Bay. The harbor is protected from Massachusetts Bay and the open Atlantic Ocean by a mix of the Winthrop Peninsula and Deer Island toward the north, the snared Nantasket Peninsula and Point Allerton toward the south, and the harbor islands in the center. The harbor itself involves fifty square miles with 180 miles (290 km) of shoreline and 34 harbor islands.

Faneuil Hall

Faneuil Hall situated close to the waterfront and the present Government Center, in Boston, Massachusetts, has been a commercial center and a meeting corridor since 1743.It was the site of a few addresses by Samuel Adams, James Otis, and others empowering autonomy from Great Britain. Presently it is a piece of Boston National Historical Park and a notable stop on the Freedom Trail.
