Vision & Plan

International Market Approach

The global trauma and extremities devices market was valued at USD 10.04 billion in 2018 and is projected to expand at a CAGR of 7.7% over the forecast period. Rising urbanization in developing countries leading to innumerable road accidents coupled with improving healthcare facilities are anticipated to drive the growth.

The percentage of road accidents in low-income countries is as high as 24% as opposed to the 9% observed in high-income countries. This serves as an attractive opportunity for smaller companies to expand their business into these regions. Local implants are preferred in low-income countries due to their low prices thus adding to the advantages of these devices for the sector players.
