Vision & Plan

International Market Approach

Vaccines market is highly fragmented with presence of few big market players offering wide range of products so far and are focusing of increasing pipeline products. Industry players will mainly emphasize on development of combined vaccines over the coming years. The industry is projected to undergo momentous expansion over the next decade.

Germany will grow at 9.3% over the coming years owing to increasing government initiatives to offer medical advice for the vaccinating children. Rising prevalence of infectious diseases and focused product development will fuel industry expansion.

U.S. accounted for more than 35% market share of global market in 2018. Growing initiatives by HHS to reduce infectious diseases by increasing immunization rates and immunization recommendations will fuel U.S. market growth. For instance, the Healthy People 2020 aims for immunization to prevent and treat infectious diseases.
