About Yokohama

Yokohama is Japan's second largest city with a population of over three million. It is a major component of the Tokyo-Yokohama metropolitan area, the largest urban collection in Japan. Yokohama is located less than half an hour south of Tokyo by train and is the capital of Kanagawa Prefecture. This is a major commercial area of the Greater Tokyo Area. Yokohama is the first harbour city introduced to the world as the entrance to Japan. Since the time its port was opened, much of the Tokyo-Yokohama metropolitan area's and concentrated for heavy manufacturing units, including shipbuilding and the production of chemicals, machinery, primary metals, petroleum products, automobiles, and fabricated metal goods. The port of Yokohama, one of the largest in Japan, handles imports of raw materials for the surrounding industrial zone and a wide range of exports. Yokohama's business district, containing many important banks and other businesses, is concentrated around the port. The total population of Yokohama is 3.7 million persons, making the city the second largest after Tokyo's 23 Wards. Many hotels and department stores are located in this area, especially the west exit vicinity a mega terminal where many subway and train lines are connected.
