About Madrid, Spain

Madrid is the capital of Spain and the largest municipality in both the Community of Madrid and Spain as a whole. The city has almost 3.2 million inhabitants with a metropolitan area population of approximately 6.5 million. It is the third-largest city in the European Union. Madrid lies on the River Manzanares in the center of both the country and the Community of Madrid (which comprises the city of Madrid, its conurbation and extended suburbs and villages); this community is bordered by the autonomous communities of Castle and León and Castile-La Mancha. As the capital city of Spain, seat of government, and residence of the Spanish monarch, Madrid is also the political, economic and cultural center of the country. The Madrid urban agglomeration has the third-largest GDP in the European Union and its influences in politics, education, entertainment, environment, media, fashion, science, culture, and the arts all contribute to its status as one of the world's major global cities. Due to its economic output, high standard of living and market size, Madrid is considered the major financial centre of Southern Europe and the Iberian Peninsula. While Madrid possesses modern infrastructure, it has preserved the look and feel of many of its historic neighborhoods and streets. This city as measured by universal landings and has the world's biggest city air terminal framework measured by traveler movement.

According to Forbes 2013, Madrid has been ranked as the ninth most expensive city in the world by Mercerand has one of the world's largest urban economies, being ranked as an alpha global city according to the Globalization and World Cities Research Network and it is also one of the fastest growing tourist destinations in the world according to the MasterCard Global Destination Cities Index.

The global cardiology devices market size was valued to USD 15.14 billion in the year 2013. Key growth drivers of cardiology include the growing adoption rates of minimally invasive surgeries, increasing global prevalence of cardiovascular diseases and the technological advancement introduced in this field. The number of minimum invasive surgeries conducted has been increased from 669.5 thousand in 2005 to 805 thousand in the year 2014. Europe was the 2nd largest region in 2014, with the rising incidences of obesity and changing lifestyle habits like; irregularity dietary and growing number of smokers that are responsible for the growth of cardiovascular disease.
