Abstract

Title: SURGICAL SITE INFECTION IN HEAD AND NECK SURGERIES

Surgical site infection is not uncommon in the field of surgery. Many factors are responsible for SSI such as nosocomial infection, iatrogenic, type of wound, patient's nutritional status, salivary contamination, immune suppression and c0-morbidities etc. Meticulous care o resolve this complication is necessary in order to save the life of a patient and valuable time of a doctor. This presentation points an insight into the care of surgical site infections.