Adjuvant Biological Treatment in Meniscus Sutures in the Knee

Arthroscopic surgery to treat knee pain attributed to a degenerative meniscus tear is the most common orthopedic procedure.
Meniscus sutures have failure rates of 10 to 40%, mainly medial meniscus
To improve these results, we use biological materials after meniscus sutures, mainly, BMA, due to the low cost and ease of preparation.