MARKET ANALYSIS

The otolaryngology and ENT surgery market is a rapidly growing sector within the healthcare industry. The increased prevalence of ENT issues is driving up demand for surgical equipment. Recent advancements in ENT technology, including as robotic surgery, Fusion ENT navigation, and electromagnetic image-guided systems, which improve precision and decrease invasiveness, have further raised the need for complex surgical equipment. The World Health Organization estimates that 432 million adults and 34 million children worldwide—or 5% of the population—have hearing loss. By 2050, it is expected that there will be 2.5 billion people on the planet, 700 million of whom would need surgery or hearing aids, which will increase the demand for cochlear implants.
