Growth and History:

The World Congress on Psychiatrists & Psychologists has grown into a premier event for mental health professionals. By 2017, it was widely recognized for attracting leading experts and fostering global collaboration. The 2018 congress focused on mental health policy, with sessions on regulatory compliance and expanding access to care, emphasizing cooperation between policymakers and mental health advocates.

In 2020, due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the congress shifted to a virtual format, with a focus on the pandemic's impact on global mental health, highlighting the rise in anxiety, depression, and stress-related disorders.

The 2022 event spotlighted the digital transformation in psychiatry and psychology, exploring teletherapy, AI-driven diagnostic tools, and mental health apps, along with ethical considerations surrounding technology. In 2023, the congress emphasized global collaboration to address mental health disparities and expand access to care in underserved regions.

The 2024 congress returned to personalized mental health care, with a focus on advancements in tailored therapeutic approaches and the use of genetic research to better understand mental health conditions.

Future Directions Psychiatry 2025:

Looking ahead, the 2025 congress will explore innovations in mental healthcare, including regenerative therapies, advanced psychological treatments, and the integration of artificial intelligence in diagnostics and interventions.
